Storage Resources

Solar United Neighbors is actively working to create and share education resources on energy storage for residential homeowners. This is an exciting new topic for many and we're eager to help our members learn more about it!

We recently did a webinar about residential battery storage and how it works:

Here's a recording of the webinar:

Also check out this storage co-op we just launched in Maryland! It's the first one we've ever done and part of how we're helping homeowners figure out battery storage together:
