MAN DIES AFTER FALLING IN ZION

Authorities have identified a 43-year-old Utah man believed to have fallen from a towering rock formation in Zion National Park.

The body of Jason Hartwell, 43, of Draper, was found Friday at the base of Angels Landing and showed signs of injuries consistent with a high-level fall, park officials said.

Park visitors had reported Thursday morning that someone had fallen off the rocky promontory, triggering a search operation.

The death was being examined by the park service in coordination with the Washington County Sheriff’s Office, officials said.

Hartwell lived in St. George, Utah, and was a 10-year veteran of the National Guard.

His spouse and two young children are surviving, and officials declined to state how long the moratorium could remain in place.

The bill was introduced on March 11, 2021. It would require gun owners to report lost or stolen firearms to federal authorities within 24 hours of realization.

The legislation is being examined by the House Committee on Natural Resources.
